Death by Accidental Poisoning.

A sad case of accidental poisoning, resulting in death, occurred at the premises on the corner of Eighth and Central avenue at 8 o'clock 'this morning. The avenue at 8 o'clock 'this morning. The victim is Michael Ford, a native of Ireland, about 55 years of age, and a laborer by occupation. The particulars concerning the affair are as follows:

On Tuesday, the 24th inst., the deceased arrived home from his work at about seven o'clock in the evening, and noticed a bottle standing in a corner of the building in which he resided. Thinking it was whisky, he took about half the contents, and immediately after felt very sick and had to retire to bed. Drs. Carney and Owens were called, who found that he had taken poison.

The bottle contained bed bug poison, and was made up of whisky and corrosive sublimate, a most irritant poison. The deceased lingered since that occasion, and at times suffered the most acute pans in the stomach. Yesterday

The Gloucester Fisheries.

The Gloucester Fisheries.

The history of Gloucester centers in the fisheries. The yarms told at her fire-sides are of hair-breath escapes at sea; her legends and romances have a flavor of the salt sea about them; her rugged red granite shores is marked with the scenes of memorable ship-wrecks and storms; her town records are the records of fleets that have gone down on the Banks, of pinks and schooners that have foundered on the Georges, of heroes who have tolled for their families, and fought the grim battle of life with the fogs, the lightning, and the swooping billows of the soulwester, and with the ice, the hall, and the sharp, savage cross seas and terrible blast of the raging nor wester, while their children have orded for their absent fathers, and their wives have while their children have orted for their absent fathers, and their wives have lain awake through long, dreary nights, burning the light in the window, and straining their eyes to see, through the gloom of the storm, the long-expected vessel and the beloved form that per-haps have already gone down at sea. Such is life on Cape Aun for those whose heritage is noble poverty, and whose lives are lives of honest toil. Her very good, as was also the singing of Miss Howitt. Miss Alcela Jourdan was also very acceptable in her personation of male parts. The "Mimiques" will be repeated again this evening.

It disappears on breaking contact, and for this reason, as well as from the fact that the tongue is not in the direct line of circuit, and also that there is no substance in the saliva likely by decomposition to cause metallic deposition, it could hardly be referred to chemical action, but must result from direct stimulation of the sensory apparatus.
